Research and Development

 Listen

The ZfL's objective and mission are to start interdisciplinary research and development projects for teacher training and to promote teacher training in a profile-building way. The evaluation of such projects is part of the philosophy of quality assurance processes and research projects. To support this task, project and working groups are set up to work on those teacher training related development and research tasks. Current projects and working groups cover the following tasks:

- › Teacher training models and occupational aptitude assessments
- › Practically oriented and research based study programs
- › Development of skills and professionalization
