Description

The Danish A2.1 course is suitable for participants with basic knowledge. It builds on the Danish A1.2 course and ensures that Danish language skills are further deepened and developed by means of everyday conversation topics and situations such as directions, camping and holidays, school and training systems in Denmark, personal descriptions, etc. The grammar will focus on perfect, past tense, plusquam perfect, indirect speech, various pronouns and the increase of adjectives. The course takes place once a week. The language course is designed in such a way that the participants complete the second sublevel (A2.1) according to the European Framework of Reference for Languages in one semester. In the following semester the Danish A2.2 course can be taken. Chapters 11 to 15 of the course book will be covered in this class.
