Description

The "Catalan language course A1.1" is suitable for learners without any previous knowledge. It is about teaching the first basic knowledge of the Catalan language.

The aim is to impart basic knowledge of Catalan grammar and vocabulary on the basis of everyday conversation topics and situations (greeting and introduction, nationality and language, addresses and numbers, etc.).

The main topics covered during the development of vocabulary are: the Catalan alphabet, character traits and hobbies, tourism and holidays, means of transport and the seasons, colours, clothing and objects.

The grammar focuses on: the numbers, the forms of the subject pronoun, the particular article, the demonstrative pronoun, the noun, genus and numerus, the possessive pronoun, describing holiday habits, indicative present, the direct and indirect object pronoun.

The course takes place during the semester with 2 SWS and is designed in such a way that the participants complete the first sublevel A1.1 according to the European Framework of Reference for Languages in one semester.

Regular and active participation is a prerequisite for successful completion of the course. To do this, it is also necessary to complete homework in order to practice and consolidate what you have learned.
