Professor of Educational Science with a Focus on Digital Education (salary group W3)

Job offer ID: 022151

Valid until: 09/06/2020

Job description

In a joint appointment procedure, Europa-Universität Flensburg and the Leibniz Institute for Science and Mathematics Education (IPN) seek to fill following position as soon as possible:

Professor of Educational Science with a Focus on Digital Education (salary group W3)

We are looking for a candidate who is internationally prominent and well-connected, and who has proven experience in the field of digitization of educational processes, especially in the area of school education. This is a well-endowed professorship with a research focus. The position location is distributed equally between EUF and the IPN. By establishing this new professorship Europa-Universität Flensburg, the IPN, and the state of Schleswig-Holstein aim to address the opportunities and consequences of digital change for teacher training in all phases, and also to deepen research on digital learning environments.

Professor of Political Science — Participation and Democracy Research (salary group W3)

Job offer ID: 012156

Valid until: 08/20/2020

Job description

The Political Science and Didactics of Politics Seminar at the Institute for Social Sciences and Theology at Europa-Universität Flensburg seeks to fill the following position by Fall Semester 2021:

Professor of Political Science — Participation and Democracy Research (salary group W3)

We are looking for a scholar with an established academic profile who will represent, in both teaching and research and in terms of both theory and empirical practice, the entire subject of political science participation and democracy. This professorship should represent the EUF's research efforts with respect to participation and democracy research, as well as on parliamentarianism, political parties and federalism, and should complement the university's research on European topics. As a requirement for the position, the selected candidate must have internationally visible academic publications in relevant journals and with leading academic publishers on topics related to the outlined research field. Candidates must also have successful experience in third-party fundraising and in establishing research partnerships. Cross-country comparative research demonstrating an in-depth knowledge of social science methods in research and teaching is desired.
