Description

The "German Language Course C1.2" is suitable for students with advanced German language knowledge.

The linguistic skills (reading, writing, listening, speaking) are trained and further developed in the areas of work, business, media and language.

Grammatical structures, bound to topics and communication contexts, are expanded, extended and deepened according to the communicative needs.

Emphasis on grammar is made by working on infinitive sentences in the present and past, nominalization and verbalization of conditional sentences and prepositional additions, special features of the passive, modal participle, subjective modal verbs for making assertions and presumptions, features of conditional sentences, and further connectors.

The following learning strategies and working techniques are also acquired:

- Active listening
- Writing a summary
- Lectures
- Making texts in a variety of ways
- Literary texts

The course takes place during the semester and is designed so that participants complete the second level (C1.2) according to the European Framework.

The combined teaching and workbook covers chapters 6 to 10.

Regular and active participation is required for successful completion of the course. This includes the completion of homework in order to continue practicing and consolidating what has been learned in the classroom.

Description

The "Campus Deutsch – Hören und Mitschreiben" course is suitable for students at the C1 level (based on Common European Framework of Reference for Languages). The course can also be taken by students with a B2-level through the addition of small-scale exercises and extensive pre-utilization of tasks.

The course is aimed at students who are transitioning from general language education to language for specific purposes.

Short description: Economical writing in lectures, as well as active, structured listening of scientific lectures and discussions.

The book "Hören und Mitschreiben" is devoted to the use of five authentic lectures to enable students to follow scientific lectures independently, so that these lectures can be recapitulated using the notes. In the basic chapter, basic techniques of active and predictive listening as well as significant writing techniques are taught. In the following chapters, these techniques are expanded and deepened. The lectures of well-known scientists and a science journalist are taken from the series "Aula" of the "Südwestrundfunk".

The course is worth 2 SWS. Regular and active participation is required for successful completion of the course. This includes the completion of homework in order to continue practicing and consolidating what has been learned in the classroom.

Description

The "Campus Deutsch – Lesen" course is suitable for students at the C1 level (based on Common European Framework of Reference for Languages). The course can also be taken by students with a B2-level through the addition of small-scale exercises and extensive pre-utilization of tasks.

The course is aimed at students who are transitioning from general language education to language for specific purposes.

The focus of this course is on the effective reading of scientific texts. Students will learn and practice five techniques for reading. These techniques enable students to develop independent reading skills of popular scientific texts with the minimum use of a dictionary. A shared basic text is edited at the beginning of the lesson where techniques are broken down into smaller steps. In addition to the basic text, there are other exercises that can be edited depending on the subject or interest of the student.

The course is worth 2 SWS. Regular and active participation is required for successful completion of the course. This includes the completion of homework in order to continue practicing and consolidating what has been learned in the classroom.
