IDENTOPIA

An interactive exhibition on hybrid identity
at the Ex Sultanmarkt

"Who are you?"

By questioning yourself as a person there is this automatic thought coming to your mind that simply being you is what makes the difference to everyone else.

But what does "being me" really mean?

How do you perceive yourself through the eyes of another person? Who are you when you don't have to be someone?"

"IDENTOPIA" is an interactive exhibition at the Ex Sultanmarkt in Neustadt, presented by students of the B.A. European Cultures and Society as part of the seminar "Instruction-based Project: Art and Scenography" guided by Svea Bischoff. Inspired by the image of a supermarket, "IDENTOPIA" invites you to reflect on the preconceptions and meaning of your personal identity. An open space to question your cultural understanding of hybrid identity and an attempt to explore the internal and external perception of self.
