Europa-Universität Flensburg is a vibrant and dynamic university in which interdisciplinary teamwork plays a prominent role. We work, teach and research for more justice, sustainability and diversity in educational processes and systems, economy and society, culture and environment. EUF offers a cosmopolitan working environment that promotes intercultural understanding and international engagement.

The German Studies Department in the Institute for Language, Literature and Media at Europa-Universität Flensburg seeks to fill the following position by March 1, 2021:

Junior Professorship for Modern German Literary Studies (W1) with Tenure Track (W3)

The ideal candidate will have an exceptional doctorate and other outstanding, preferably internationally visible publications in the field of modern German literary studies in research and teaching (with a focus on the 18th and 19th centuries). Teaching duties include courses in the university’s BA program in teacher training and MA programs relevant to teacher training. In addition, she or he should be willing to teach courses in the BA program “European Cultures and Society” and the MA programs “European Studies” and “Culture - Language – Media,” and should be able to give courses in both German and English.

Prerequisites are a university degree, an outstanding (qualifizierte) doctorate in a specialized field, and other outstanding publications in the area of German-language literary studies.

The selected candidate is expected to actively further the development of the field and the relevant degree programs and degree components at EUF, and to have the capacity to engage in interdisciplinary research and teaching, especially in the university’s research centers, on literary studies topics in a European context. She or he is also expected to help further develop the department’s profile and to be willing to work collaboratively in the university’s Center for Teacher Training. University teaching skills, experience in third-party fundraising and international cooperation, and a willingness to participate in the university’s self-governing bodies are also desirable.

This professorship is funded by the Tenure Track Programme of the German Federal Government and the Federal States. This job announcement is aimed at early-career researchers. Please note the recruitment requirements set forth in § 64 of the Higher Education Act of the State of Schleswig-Holstein. As a mandatory prerequisite for appointment, the selected candidate must have at least two years of academic or research experience outside of Europa-Universität Flensburg, or else hold a doctoral degree from another university. If this tenure-track professorship is positively evaluated, its tenure-track status will be binding and not subject to the availability of reserved positions. In accordance with the applicable teaching obligation regulations, teaching duties are 4 LVS (course hours) during the first phase of the junior professorship and, following successful evaluation during second phase, 6 LVS.
