Course aims and requirements	Based on the qualifications of the first module, creative knowledge and skills in fashion design are acquired on a project-by-project basis. In the areas of "textile art" and "clothing and fashion", the focus can be either on media-visual artistic or performative-vestimental strategies, and basic knowledge of presentation design and curatorial practice can be applied. Practical design problems in material and multimedia fields of textile experience are to be identified, documented, translated into questions and used for own design solutions (application and problem solving skills). In creative fields of action decisions have to be made, tests have to be carried out, evaluations have to be conducted, assessments have to be formulated (decision-making and judgement skills) and conveyed in presentations (communication skills).
	In the experimental work strategies as well as in the prototypical realization of selected work drafts various textile and non-textile design techniques and their combinations are applied (deepening of textile techniques, introduction into design strategies as well as into fashion drawing and fashion illustration), in addition sufficient knowledge in the use of the new media in the artistic aesthetic design is acquired (e.g. introduction into video editing) and the application of forms and techniques of presentation.
	Documentation of design processes, keeping of work diary with portfolio.
	Self- and social skills are promoted, especially in aspects of self-presentation and self-staging. Self-reflexive competences in the analysis of own design processes as well as the empathic description and evaluation of the practice of other people are further developed.
