Students understand how culture and education are interrelated. They know about the basic elements of constructing Europe as an intercultural space and are aware of its importance for future social and individual development options. They comprehend the social construction of education and representations, and are able to identify differences between education systems and their implications for nation building in different contexts. They are able to understand and discuss theoretical approaches dealing with today's social and individual challenges for education (interculturality, transmigration, inequality, etc.) and are aware of the importance of the educational space 'Europe' for future social and individual development options.

Students learn to identify mechanisms of cultural reproduction including their social and individual aspects. They are introduced to cultural studies and learn to discuss them in trans- and multicultural contexts of education and understand basic aspects of European education history.

The students deal with methodological approaches in the fields of educational research and cultural analysis. They are familiar with concepts of educational settings, cross-cultural education, oral history, material culture, and cultural memory.

Students are sensitised to processes of cultural and educational inclusion/exclusion. They are encouraged to reflect on the individual and collective (differing) cultures of education and to reflect on their personal role in educational processes. They are able to understand, communicate and negotiate social situations of cultural heterogeneity.
