Open and Permanent Call for Papers: Culture, Practice and Europeanization

Description: An international, double-blind peer reviewed journal

We kindly invite you to submit papers to the interdisciplinary journal Culture, Practice and Europeanization. Culture, Practice and Europeanization (CPE) is a peer reviewed platform for publishing research-based articles predominantly dealing with research into the multiplicity of social processes, interactions, and policies relating to Europeanization and international encounters in Europe. Empirical, theoretical and conceptual texts of significant originality will be considered for publication. CPE welcomes contributions that seek to enhance understanding of social processes relating to internationalization, internationally relevant practices, and further trans-national activities and processes in Europe. Contributions may also be based on observations in settings outside of Europe that are (e.g. historically, politically, culturally) connected to European practices. Texts may relate, inter alia, to the fields of internationalization of businesses and education, to research into trans-cultural encounters and communication, to migration, to the formation of attitudes towards Europe, or to comparative studies on social inequality and welfare. All methodological approaches are welcomed. CPE publishes at least biannually.
